DOLAN'S DEATH.

The Murderer of Red Ray Barely Escapes Being Lynched.

A Disappointed Mob. DIED—At the Northern Pacific Sanitarium in this city, on Monday morning, from the effects of a wound inflicted by one Sanford, Hugh Dolan, aged 24 years.

The incidents connected with the above announcement are well known to our readers. Dolan was shot down in cowardly manner by a sneak thief and murderer on Friday the 19th, but he lingered along suffering untold agony until Monday night of this week, nine days from the time he was shot when he breathed his last. The remains were prepared for burial at Losey & Dean's undertaking rooms and sent to Minneapolis on the noon train accompanied by his three brothers, the funeral taking place from the residence of his mother, A. J. Dolan, 5th avenue north-east and 4th street, on Wednesday, Father O'Reilly officiating.

Hugh Dolan was born in Boston Aug. 25th, 1863, and came to Maple Grove in 1886 with his father's family, where he made his home until three years ago, since which time he has lived in Minneapolis. He had been in Brainerd about three weeks previous to the fatal shooting.

A NECKTIE PARTY SPOILED. The news of the death of Dolan spread over the city in a short time, and although it was thought that the excitement incident to the shooting had died away, it was noticeable that Dolan's intimate friends the thirst for vengeance on the murderer was still ranking in their breasts. It was talked around on the streets in the afternoon that a party of eighty men and lumbermen from Gull River, seven miles west of Brainerd, and who were intimately acquainted with the deceased and his family, were to come to this city at night and fall and lynch Red Ray, who was confined in the county jail. The rumor was contradicted by the people here as the sentiment among the law abiding citizens was to let the law deal out justice to the man, although the sentiment prevailed that he deserved death.

Nothing unusual had occurred up to 11 o'clock, but men strangers were traveling up and down the sidewalk and a despatch scribe was informed that a crowd was congregating near the bridge, about 60 men having arrived from Gull River. This surely meant something as the crowd was armed with ropes and axes and the necessary implements to force an entrance to the jail if they were refused admission. At exactly twenty-five minutes to one o'clock the crowd, of whom probably a dozen of the leaders were masked, marched to the jail and in a determined tone they demanded the surrender of Red Ray, the murderer. Deputy Sheriff Mattison came to the door and informed the mob that he was not in the building and that he did not know where he was. That statement the masked knights of the lynch did not believe, and they were allowed to search the jail from cellar to garret. The next building to be ransacked was the new city jail adjoining, and which is not finished. A box stood in the middle of the floor and as they could not get in immediately they began to send bullets through the windows. The mob was then slipping out the door of the building with a bar of railroad iron they proceeded to the court house and it turned was gone through, but with no success. When the mob emerged from this building they were met and no mistake. Thinking that their much wanted victim might be in the old city jail on 5th street they proceeded there and broke it open liberating two prisoners. One of them was for vagrancy, and the other one was supposed to be a partner of Red Ray, who was in for ninety days. The crowd then scattered and search was made in various places throughout the city with no better success, and at daylight they dispersed. Sheriff Mertz was informed in the afternoon that the jail would be visited that night, and he accordingly slipped out with his prisoner at 10 o'clock and took him to St. Paul. How he got out without observation is a mystery to the crowd that wanted him, as they claim they had watchers around the building all the afternoon. The ring leaders of the mob, who were from Gull River, declared they would have "lay" no matter how long it took to accomplish the end.

Released from Confinement.

Mr. W. S. Wood, the popular teacher on Harvard street in Atlanta, Ga., says: "I was confined to my bed for more than six months with chronic rheumatism. I could not move on my bed without help, nor without excruciating pain. I tried the treatment of two or three of the best physicians of Atlanta. Temporary relief was all that I obtained. A helpless invalid, I was ready for any suggestion, and when a friend said that he believed Swift's Specific would help me I consented to try it. Everything else had failed, and it could do me no harm. In May, 1885, I began its use. My case was a stubborn one, and at first yielded reluctantly to the treatment. As the joints regained their suppleness, my strength returned, and I was sound and well. That was twelve months ago, and to-day I am still well and strong, and the disease has not troubled me in the meantime. Swift's Specific has made me a new man.

Markets in a Siberian City.

Central Siberia Letter: The markets of Irkutsk are an interesting sight in winter time, for everything on sale is frozen solid. Fat is piled up in stacks like so much cordwood, and meat likewise. All kinds of fowl are similarly frozen and piled up. Some animals brought into the market whole are propped up on their hind legs, and have the appearance of being actually alive; as you go through the market you seem to be surrounded by living pigs, sheep, oxen and fowls. But stranger yet, even the liquids are frozen and sold in blocks. Milk is frozen into a block in this way, with a string or stick frozen into it or projecting from it, for the convenience of the purchaser, who can take his milk by the stick, and carry it home swung across his shoulder. So, in a sense which is not known in other countries, a man can buy his drink with "a stick in it."

She is also a cousin to Nathalie Turgeon, whose shame, as well as her own, she is now publishing through the press. I look upon her as unworthy of credence and I would not believe her on her oath.

A LOVE LETTER OF WHICH NATHALIE TURGEON DOES NOT BOAST.

To Mrs. N. Turgeon (1). Madam—You write to me and you speak of your "legitimate" husband! Your hypocrisy is simply appalling.

Fortunately the medical certificate signed by two physicians is safely lodged in the archives at the bishop's. Both that certificate and your own personal testimony prove that there has been no marriage between you and Nathalie Turgeon. You have deceived me and now you are deceiving that poor unfortunate Turgeon.

I forbid you to write to me. T. A. VAUDRY.

ANOTHER BILLET-DOUX.

Brainerd, April 9th, 1886. To Miss Nathalie Meunier, alias Turgeon. I opened your letter to ascertain what you had to say to me. That point ascertained, I consigned your letter to the fire without even reading it.

Wretch! A truce to your hypocrisy! T. A. VAUDRY.

N. B.—Father Marcel received at the time copies of these billet-doux.

A CLUMSY FORGERY.

State of Minnesota, County of Crow, I, John J. Kennedy, being duly sworn depose and say:

I am familiar with Father Vaudry's handwriting. I have been shown by Nathalie Turgeon one of the letters she claims to have been written by Father Vaudry. I did not hesitate to declare under my oath that the letter produced by Nathalie Turgeon is a very clumsy forgery. I am not a writer, but I am a clergyman, and I am not a forger.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 15th day of August, A. D. 1886.

The following is taken from the St. Paul Pioneer Press, of Aug. 24:

Interest in the scandal case involving T. A. Vaudry, St. Francis Catholic church, revived by local publication of the defense made by the priest. The undoubted result will be a great church sensation, especially in this diocese. Affidavits and documents are given out by Father Vaudry for the purpose of making it appear that the Polk county priest, who have hitherto been mentioned in the case, Father Carrel and Lawler, entered into a league with the woman in the case to "down" Father Vaudry in a "great scandal," the motive for which is set forth as revenge and jealousy on the part of the priests, and to extort money on the part of the woman. There had been no legal steps taken, but the case stood where it was left pending trial in October; but the usual proceeding of making public testimony in advance seems to have resulted from a challenge publicly made by Father Carrel and Lawler, and the accused priest, seems to have decided to boldly accept it, even at the risk of exposing his line of defense in the main case.

FATHER VAUDRY'S PREVIOUS CAREER. In connection with the above, there has been set before the writer the leading events in a remarkable career for a man so young. Father Vaudry, a native of France, came to this country in 1865, and was at first employed as a clerk in the office of the late Archbishop of Canterbury, Mr. Tait. It was not long, however, before he found that he could not consistently adhere to the false creed of the Catholic church, and he left the priesthood. He then became a member of the Protestant church, and was ordained a minister. He was then employed as a teacher in the Protestant school, and was later employed as a pastor in the Protestant church. however, followed him to this diocese, and in self-defense he appealed to Bishop Seidenbusch, who, after giving over all the documents in the case, gave him a letter expressing confidence in him and stating his case was not one of apostasy to non-Catholicism, but of liberal Catholicism and breach of discipline, with the greatly extenuating circumstances of despair, to which he was driven by the unjust treatment he endured during the absence of his bishop. He preferred to leave and he left with prospects in Europe rather than take up with non-Catholicism. From the time of his return, Bishop Seidenbusch says his conduct has been irreproachable. Father Vaudry will fight his present trouble to the end and then return to Rome and endeavor to learn if the Holy Father has the power to afford, in the church, protection to his priests and workers.

An Editor Robbed.

Wednesday burglars entered the residence of C. F. Macdonald, editor of the St. Cloud Times, and made away with his gold watch and chain, his cuff buttons, a quantity of Mrs. Macdonald's jewelry and $27 in cash. The thieves cut a slit from a shutter of a window in the room adjoining the bed room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald, and found the window raised. The watch was in a vest hanging on a bed post, and the jewelry in a bureau in plain view from the bed, but in the room first entered.

The great Minneapolis Industrial exposition, which opens August 23, and closes October 2, will attract a large number of people from various parts of the Northwest, and there is no fear that any visitor will get bored after beholding the magnificent exhibits which are held in its remarkable galleries of our beautiful and useful articles. Those who have charge of the enterprise realized from the first, that it was imperative duty and necessity to provide an exhibition that would surpass anything of the kind ever opened in this section of the country, and of equaling any other, at the Philadelphia Centennial, and it is not too much to say that they have been equal to their responsibility. There are tens of thousands of people from all over the world and from every clime, who never behold anything so grand and comprehensive as the Minneapolis Exposition. It is a great school for the arts that cannot fail of imparting to the people not only entertainment, but also knowledge that will be of lasting benefit to every beholder. The displays and numberless attractions to and about Minneapolis are so abundant and so judiciously arranged that exhibitors that will

A Musical Event.

This is Minnie Hauk's fourth tour through the country, and her appearance attracts unusual attention, and is greeted by crowded houses everywhere.

She is supported by some of the best artists now in the country, including the Chevalier deKontski, who ranks with the greatest vocalists of the present time, and whose achievements are great. The nature of the entertainment. Mr. Spigarski, of the grand opera of Milan, is one of the best tenors in America. Mike. Muelienbach was the contralto of the American Opera company last season, while George Fox has been known for several years as the leading baritone of the Strakoski Opera company. The programme is the most interesting of any similar entertainment given in this city, and since the first part of the programme will be miscellaneous, while the second part consists of the principal scenes of the greatest operatic success of the age, Faust, which has been sung over two hundred times by Minnie Hauk, and during the first act, the two last operatic festivals in Cincinnati, where she sang the part of Marguerite. The scenes from Faust will be presented in full stage costume, so that the entertainment is more of the character of opera than of concert. The company will appear in Brainerd on the evening of Sept. 1st. Reserved seats can be obtained at Webb's news stand.

Still on Deck.

The members of the W. C. T. U. present at the regular meeting on Tuesday, August 24th, passed without a dissenting voice, the following resolution:

Resolved, That with deepest gratitude to the friends, old and new, who are rallying round us with undiminished zeal in the cause we advocate, and with untiring faith in Him whom we serve, we declare our purpose to carry forward the same plan and along the same lines, the work we have in hand.

Inasmuch as the impression has gone out that the W. C. T. U. reading room was to be closed, and the Secretary was requested to furnish a copy of the above resolutions to each of the city papers. As an exponent of our creed we refer you to a resolution passed by the National W. C. T. U. at Cleveland in November, 1874, viz:

Resolved, That recognizing the fact that our cause is and will be combated by might, determined and relentless forces we will, trusting in Him who is the Prince of Peace, meet argument with argument, misjudgment with patience, denunciation with kindness, and all our difficulties and dangers with prayer.

Capt. Jack Todd.

The following story is related by the Sauk Rapids Sentinel:

Capt. Jack Todd, the well known and hearty old man, who has, for 10, many years, been a constant visitor to the lumber woods of the Upper Mississippi and on both branches of the River, on one occasion, just after the railroad was finished here and Brainerd, did a very bold and daring act while making the trip from Minneapolis to Brainerd. It was a cold chilly night, but Jack was comfortably fixed with his two machine guns, and quite aged people, a man and wife, who were quite tired and shivering with the cold, sat two in front of the doughty captain. The brakeman on the train had started a fire in the heater, and a bulky customer who only thought of his own comfort had taken possession of the seat next to the stove, when a kind hearted traveling man (and they are all of that stamp) on the seat opposite the aged couple, noticing their want to the occupant of the seat near the fire, and asked him if he would not get enough to let the old couple have the seat a little while that they might thaw out a little; but the pigsticker fellow replied that he was comfortable enough, and every one could look out for themselves. This awakened Todd, who rose from his reclining position, walked down the aisle of the car in all the strength of his manhood, and he would in his polite language if he would let the old people take the seat by the stove and warm up. The reply he received was "I am quite comfortable how do you feel?" Todd walked back to the stove and invited them to go and warm. When the three reached the stove, Jack said to the man, give these folks that seat and do so now. Todd looked at him and then walked off. Todd fixed the poor fellow up with his blankets, and then resumed his old seat. When the train arrived at Brainerd the old couple were kindly cared for and made comfortable for the night by Todd. When the selfish traveler came to his senses, he invited Capt. Todd to go and take a dish of oysters with him, which he heartily declined, and when the two parted they were the best of friends. The stranger acknowledged that he had learned a valuable lesson. That is the kind of a man that Capt. Todd is.

Why Life Should Not Be Judged from Moment to Moment.

Science is continually discovering the unsuspected uses of common things; noxious weeds and plants which have been long regarded as pests and nuisances by the gardener and the farmer, studied more closely, reveal the most beneficent qualities. It has been recently discovered, for instance, that the Canada thistle, one of the most stubborn and exasperating of all the farm-weeds, can be made into a fine fabric of most serviceable quality. This is only one illustration of a thousand which make clear man's ignorance of the real uses of the things that surround him, and throw a broad and penetrating light on the difficulties and obstacles which surround his own growth and development. Every thoughtful man or woman remembers some experience, bitter indeed at the time, which, now that it has been passed and lies clear in the distance, is seen to have been a piece of rare good fortune. Many a man's disappointment in the path which he had chosen for himself has turned him into another field, where he has achieved a success and acquired an influence of which he never dreamed. Many a woman's regret, now bitter beyond tears at the moment, has revealed to her unsuspected resources of power, and brought untold wealth of hope and peace and joy. Do you judge your life from moment to moment; wait until the ulterior purposes are disclosed; wait until the unexpected uses are revealed; live until the great plan which you are working out lies clear and complete before you. —Christian Union.

FRENCH FABRICS.

Novel Combinations of Coloring in the Latest Products of French Looms.

Paris has been busy preparing a large variety of woolen fabrics, which, doubtless, will be brought out later at much cheaper rates in the United States, however, in their reproduction some of their original perfection both in the looms of Germany and of Great Britain. The new stuffs are characterized by brightness of tone and a novel and happy combination of coloring. The pinks, which erstwhile were few and far between, now flood the market, and nearly every woolen fabric has been covered with them. There are a few horizontal stripes, and some checks, formed by interwoven or rope cords, but pinks carry the day by far to such. Pinks, in connection with dress, consist of horizontal stripes of a distinct kind from the ground, and of varying widths, and in some cases, extending to the depth of half a yard or more, sometimes placed in front, sometimes at the sides, and now, in this season, they are occasionally all around the skirt.

Canvases is the dominant idea in all the new woolens, only the varieties are so diverse. It would puzzle all but the caterers of fashion to decide why some of the stuffs are considered canvases at all. They are thin and fine, and sometimes in diagonal lines, and sometimes broadened, but their chief originality this season is the pinks. Some of them are open-work, like a particular sort of curtain muslin used to be; and this is divided by stripes of irregular widths, either of plush or velvet. Biscuit and cord of brown carry all before them. When I was looking over these stuffs there appeared to be six tones of brown at least to one of every other color.

One great comfort is that skirts will be made up at the cost of but little trouble, and no expense for trimmings—a remark which applies to another class of materials with interwoven borders, chiefly of escherman designs and colors. The canvases are of a very soft texture, and in the pinks at least have a yard deep. I was particularly pleased with a coffee brown, having six rows of stripes, and a few different shades: dark brown, red green, terra-cotta, blue, stone. Mignonette and beige also blend well.—Cassell's

DOLAN'S DEATH.

The Murderer of Red Ray Barely Escapes Being Lynched.

A Disappointed Mob.

DIED—At the Northern Pacific Sanatorium in this city, on Monday morning, from the effects of a wound inflicted by one Sanford, Hugh Dolan, aged 24 years.

The incidents connected with the above announcement are well known to our readers. Dolan was shot down in cowardly manner by a sneak thief and murderer on Friday the 13th, but he lingered along suffering untold agony until Monday night of this week, nine days from the time he was shot when he breathed his last. The remains were prepared for burial at Lacey & Dean's undertaking rooms and sent to Minneapolis on the noon train accompanied by his three brothers, the funeral taking place from the residence of his brother, A. J. Dolan, 8th avenue north-east and 4th street, on Wednesday, Father O'Reilly officiating.

Hugh Dolan was born in Boston, Aug. 29th, 1863, and came to Maple Grove in 1886 with his father's family, where he made his home until three years ago, since which time he has lived in Minneapolis. He had been in Brainerd about three weeks previous to the fatal shooting.

A SECRET PARTY SPOILED.

The news of the death of Dolan spread over the city in a short time, and although it was thought that the excitement incident to the shooting had died away, it was noticeable that among Dolan's intimate friends the thirst for vengeance on the murderer was still ranking in their breasts. It was talked around on the streets in the afternoon that a party of eight men and lumbermen from Gull River, seven miles west of Brainerd, and who were intimately acquainted with the deceased and his family, were to come to this city after night fall and lynch Red Ray, who was confined in the county jail. The rumor was discounted by the people here as the sentiment among the law abiding citizens was a very different one. Thinking that their march on the jail to the man, although the sentiment prevailed that he deserved death.

Nothing unusual had occurred up to 11 o'clock, but many strangers were traveling up and down the sidewalk and a dispatch scribe was in informed that a crowd was congregating near the bridge, about 60 men having arrived from Gull River. The crowd was armed with rods, axes and the necessary implements to force an entrance to the jail if they were refused admission. At exactly twenty-five minutes to one o'clock the crowd, of whom probably a dozen of the leaders were masked, marched to the jail and in a determined tone they demanded the surrender of the murderer.

Deputy Sheriff Mattison came to the door and informed the mob that he was not in the building and that he did not know where he was. This statement the masked knights of the hemp did not believe, and they were allowed to search the jail from cellar to garret. The next building to be ransacked was the new city jail adjoining, and which was not found in the middle of the floor and as they could not get in immediately they began to send bullets through the box thinking the man was under it. After battering in the door of this building with a bar of railroad iron they proceeded to the court house and it in turn was gone through, but with no success. When the mob emerged from this building they were met and meted by Sheriff Mattison, who wanted very much to make a party of the mob, but he was not in the building and that he did not know where he was.
